++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Dry and mostly sunny today but feeling cold.

Today:
It will be a generally dry day with plenty of bright autumnal sunshine, however feeling much colder than on Wednesday, particularly where exposed to the chilly northerly breeze. Some patchy cloud may develop in places, particularly over the Pennines. Maximum temperature 6 deg C (43 deg F).

Tonight:
Scattered showers drifting in from the Irish sea this evening before more general periods of heavier rain, move southwards overnight. Becoming windier, with local gales on coasts by the morning. Minimum temperature 2 deg C (36 deg F).

Friday:
Rain clearing southern parts of the region by mid-morning, with brighter skies and blustery showers following, these most frequent near the coast and turning wintry over higher ground later. Windy. Maximum temperature 8 deg C (46 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Very windy and cold on Saturday, with sunshine and showers, wintry over hills. Sunnier with much light winds on Sunday. Probably cloudier with rain, preceded by hill snow on Monday.
